

---

Table of contents

Acknowledgements	5
Introduction	9
Chapter I:
GA's Scene of Origin in the Context of Anthropological Study	17
I.A. Gans' Scene of Origin	24
I.B. What Does Anthropology Oblige Us to Do?	28
I.C. GA, Anthropology & Language	36
Chapter II:
GA in Reference to Cassirer's and Heidegger's Visions of the Human	43
II.A. Gans and Cassirer	50
II.B. Gans and Heidegger	56
Chapter III:
GA in Cognitive Contexts and Mythological Narratives	65
III.A. GA in Reference to Cratos, Rhetoric, Crisis, and Cognition – Greek Examples	67
III.A1. Cratos as Cognition	67
III.A2. Cratos as Deferral	76
III.A3. Rhetoric, Violence, Deferral	78
III.A4. Crisis and GA	83
III.B. Cratos as Cognition: Gans and Dumézil in Dialogue on Language and Violence	87

TABLE OF CONTENTS

III.B.1. Cratos in Human Culture	90
III.B.2. Dumézil in Gans' World	95
III.B.3. The Cratos Metaphor in Dumézil's Indo-European Mythology and The Scandinavian Example	105
III.C. Generative Anthropology's Scene of Origin in Cognitive and Axiological Contexts – A Hindu Example	121
III.D. Generative Anthropology and Cognitive Identity in Mythical Transfers	135
Chapter IV:
From Cognitive to Neurocognitive: The Potentials of Gans' Scene of Origin	145
Closing Remarks	167
Bibliography	173